

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

March 6, 2014

Dear Julia:

On behalf of the Exhibits Committee, I want to take this opportunity to thank you for promoting the resources and services of the Michigan State University Libraries through installations on copyright, preservation and the 50th anniversary of the British sci-fi TV show, Doctor Who. The latter display, created in collaboration with Suzi Teghtmeyer, was predictably quite popular with students: one Doctor Who enthusiast even submitted a gushing note of appreciation via the Libraries' suggestion box!

Your 4-West installation, Preservation: Forestalling the Ravages of Time, produced jointly with five colleagues, offered best practices for conservation and preservation of printed books, personal records, photographs, music CDs, data files, etc. to help ensure lasting access and viability. Group collaborations can pose extra challenges with regard to shared vision and division of labor, so I commend you for the successful teamwork which resulted in such a highly practical and informative display.

Exhibit production is a unique scholarly/creative endeavor that requires a substantial investment of time. I greatly appreciate your voluntary participation in this important PR activity which not only serves to publicize our resources but makes the Library a more interesting and inviting place.
