Dear Steve,

Julia Frankosky participated as a member of the inaugural 2014- 2015 Teacher Librarian Community of Practice.

This volunteer community serves to bolster existing skills and excellence in both teaching and liaison, as well as builds an ongoing network of peers for idea generation and collaboration. Participants in the group met once a month for nine months to read and discuss current literature on information literacy teaching and learning, and provide feedback for one another on current teaching situations and ideas.

I was especially pleased to have Julia as a member. Her perspective as newer librarian was valuable to the group, and she was eager to participate in discussions. She also shared some truly innovative ideas from her work with James Madison students. She was a committed member of the group and provided excellent feedback and insight.

Thank you for your support of Julia as a teacher librarian!
