
MAGAZINES FOR LIBRARIESTM

TWENTY-EIGHTH EDITION

Edited by Cheryl LaGuardia

created by

Bill Katz

For the general reader and school, junior college, college, university and public libraries

Reviewing the best publications for all serials collections
since 1969

ProQuest[®]
A stylized graphic element consisting of a thick, black, curved line that starts under the 'P', dips down, and then sweeps up to end under the 't' of ProQuest.

Start here.

Published by ProQuest LLC
Copyright © 2019 by ProQuest LLC
All rights reserved
Printed and bound in the United States of America

International Standard Book Numbers
ISBN 13: 978-1-60030-677-8
International Standard Serial Number 0000-0914
Library of Congress Catalog Card Number 86-640971

No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, or stored in any information storage and retrieval system, without prior written permission of ProQuest LLC, 630 Central Ave., New Providence, NJ 07974

ISBN: 978-1-60030-677-8

Parent & Child has an interesting life: first, it is a printed magazine that covers learning issues from birth to about six years, happening to be part of Scholastic's larger web presence, which includes not only this magazine's content. But also, it takes the reader further through middle school. Not surprisingly, Scholastic has collected an advisory board for the magazine that includes several national early-childhood experts. The articles are short and informative, and are intended to bridge a child's preschool learning experience with his or her learning life at home. The magazine presents learning and health issues, behavioral and developmental information, and lots of activities for parents to use at home. All public libraries should consider this magazine; also, learning resource centers at schools that train early-childhood staff should purchase it.

3885. Parents. Former titles (until 1993): Parents' Magazine; (until 1985): Parents; Which incorporated (in 1981): Parents Home; Which was formerly (until 1977): Handy Andy Magazine; (until 1978): Parents' Magazine; (until 1977): Parents' Magazine and Better Homemaking; Parents' & Better Family Living; (until 1973): Parents' Magazine and Better Family Living; (until 1968): Parents' Magazine & Better Family Living; (until 1959): Parents' Magazine & Family Home Guide; Homemaking; (until 1953): Parents' Magazine; Children; Mother's Magazine; Mother's Activities. [ISSN: 1083-6373] 1926. m. USD 6 per issue. Ed(s): Dana Points. Meredith National Media Group, 1716 Locust St, Des Moines, IA 50309; patrick.taylor@meredith.com; <http://www.meredith.com>. Illus., adv. Sample. Indexed: A22, BRI, C37, CBRI, PdeR. Bk. rev.: 4-5, 50 words. Aud.: Ga.

Parents has in many ways become the industry standard for parenting magazines. As with many others, its focus tends to be on early-childhood development and health topics rather than on issues associated with older children. There are many regular columns on child development and health, on maternal and parental health—which are often focused on readers' questions. Feature articles include many short pieces on family life, home style, fun time, and health and safety, to name just a few departments. Highly recommended for any public library that addresses the needs of families.

3886. Twins (Online): the magazine for multiples. 1984. bi-m. Free. Ed(s): Laura Cunningham. Panoptic Media, 142 Mariner Blvd #510, Spring Hill, FL 34609; <http://www.panoptic-media.com/>. Adv. Sample. Bk. rev.: 2-3, 50 words. Aud.: Ga.

Oh, my. Double the joy and double the trials of parenthood! Although there probably isn't a parent of twins (or triplets) who would have it any other way, there's no question that there are particular issues, both logistical and psychological, of handling the children of multiple birth. With fertility technologies increasing in use and sophistication, twinning (and beyond!) is much more common than it once was, so a cheerful, helpful magazine like Twins is welcome. It contains product reviews, feature articles, developmental discussions, and more. Articles are thoughtful, often highly personal discussions of issues and successes. Some recent titles include "The Best of Both Worlds, How Parents of Multiples Run Successful Home-Based Businesses" and "Double Talk, Do Your Twins Speak a Secret Language." Recommended for public libraries.

■ PEACE AND CONFLICT STUDIES

Julia Frankosky, Government Information and Political Science
Librarian, Michigan State University, 366 W. Circle Dr., East Lansing, MI 48824; frankosk@msu.edu

Introduction

Peace and conflict studies is a relatively new field that grew out of the devastating violence of the First World War and gained traction in academia in the decades following World War II. President Woodrow Wilson's Fourteen Points for peacemaking in 1918 laid out many of the same principles for peace that are still accepted by peace scholars to this day, such as disarmament and free trade. With the end of the Second World War and the creation of the United Nations, it became evident to scholars that in order for the United Nations to maintain its mission of promoting international cooperation and peace, rigorous research needed to be done in the areas of peace and conflict resolution.

In 1948, Manchester University in Indiana created the first undergraduate academic program in peace studies in the United States. Similar programs and related courses became more widespread throughout the 1960s due to the Vietnam War and the desire of anti-war undergraduate students to pursue peaceful solutions to violent conflicts. By the 1980s, as the prospect of nuclear apocalypse seemed almost imminent, the number of peace studies courses available at universities worldwide increased dramatically. With the end of the Cold War, peace and conflict studies remained widespread throughout university curricula, but the focus shifted from pre-Cold War emphasis on international conflict to a more comprehensive focus on peace and conflict as it relates to the human condition with a growth in interest related to human rights, gender inequality, human security, democratization, as well as the more traditional aspects related to security issues and conflicts.

While peace and conflict studies grew in academic curricula, peace-related research institutes were founded. The Peace Research Institute Oslo (PRIO) was the first to be created in 1959 and with it, the creation of the first peace and conflict-focused journal: the Journal of Peace Research. Many other peace research centers were created, such as the Peace Science Society (which publishes the journals Journal of Conflict Resolution and Conflict Management and Peace Science), the International Peace Research Association, and the Peace and Justice Studies Association (which publishes the journal Peace and Change: A Journal of Peace Research), just to name a few.

Peace and conflict studies encompasses a variety of disciplines including international relations, political science, philosophy, gender studies, religious studies, economics, geography, history, anthropology, and psychology. It is also multicultural and examines conflict and relationships at all levels, from interpersonal to international in scope. Researchers apply both theoretical and empirical methods to analyze conflicts and propose peaceful resolutions, while also examining issues related to human rights, marginalization, and ecological degradation, with the goal of promoting sustainable world peace.

This topic is of interest to scholars and laypeople alike and as such, there is a variety of literature available for all levels of expertise. From grassroots organization newsletters to peer-reviewed scholarly articles written by leading experts in the field, there is no shortage of resources for peace and conflict studies and the publications highlighted in this section represent the top resources on this spectrum. These resources provide the latest insights and research in the multifaceted area of peace and conflict studies for researchers, activists, scholars, and policy makers.

Basic Periodicals

Hs: Arms Control Today, Fellowship, Peace Review; Ac: Arms Control Today, Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, Conflict Management and Peace Science, Journal of Conflict Resolution, Journal of Peace Research, Peace & Change, Peace Review.

Basic Abstracts and Indexes

Alternative Press Index, Peace Research Abstracts.

3887. Arms Control Today. Formerly (until 1974): A C A Newsletter. [ISSN: 0196-125X] 1971. 10x/yr. USD 85 print & online eds. Free to members. Ed(s): Terry Atlas. Arms Control Association, 1313 L St. NW, Ste 130, Washington, DC 20005; aca@armscontrol.org; <http://www.armscontrol.org>. Illus., index, adv. Vol. ends: Dec. Microform: PQC. Indexed: A22, BRI. Bk. rev.: 1, 800-1,200 words. Aud.: Ac.

The Arms Control Association, which publishes Arms Control Today, was founded in 1971 and is a national nonpartisan membership organization dedicated to promoting public understanding and support for arms control policies. It helps provide policy makers, the press, and the public with authoritative information, analysis, and commentary on arms control proposals, treaties, negotiations, agreements, and other national security-related issues. This magazine is dedicated to promoting a better understanding of arms control subjects and offers comprehensive data and intelligence on national security issues. Each issue begins with a "Focus" essay that highlights an important issue related to arms control: for instance, an article in the latest issue talks about "Freezing and Reversing North Korea's Nuclear Advances." Other feature articles include "Papal Condemnation of Nuclear Deterrence and What Is Next," and "Improving U.S. Ballistic Missile Defense Policy." Interviews with important decision makers in the arms control arena are also conducted and well documented in the Q&A section, such as the article "Ambassador Adam Bugajski: 'The NPT is still strong and alive,'" in which Poland's permanent representative to the U.N. office discusses the Nonproliferation Treaty. The "News" section has articles such as "Chemical Attack Kills Dozens in Douma" and "'Denuclearization' Poses Summit Challenge." A bibliography with citations to current literature on topics relevant to the subject being discussed is found in each issue. This is an excellent resource for academic libraries and research centers.

- 3888. Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists (Online). [ISSN: 1938-3282] 1945. bi-m. GBP 233. Ed(s): John Mecklin. Routledge, 530 Walnut St, Ste 850, Philadelphia, PA 19106; enquiries@tandfonline.com; http://www.tandfonline.com. Adv. Sample. Refereed. Bk. rev.: Number and length vary. Aud.: Ga, Ac, Sa.

Founded by a former physicist who worked on the Manhattan Project, the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists aims to increase the public's interest in regard to atomic energy and its risks. Since 1945, the Bulletin has stuck to its mission of educating citizens about the dangers of nuclear weapons, and in 1947, the Bulletin created the Doomsday Clock, which has become the universal symbol of the various threats to humanity, including weapons of mass destruction, climate change, and other disruptive technologies. Featured articles cover such topics as climate change and rising sea levels, nuclear proliferation, and cybersecurity. The "Nuclear Notebook" column has been published since 1987 and provides an overview of a different country's nuclear capabilities. In the "Global Forum" section of a recent issue, there is an article "Ban the bomb by... banning the bomb?" in which authors from three countries, Joellen Pretorius of South Africa, Polina Sinovets of Ukraine, and Mustafa Kibaroglu of Turkey, discuss what aspects the prospective U.N. treaty that would outright ban nuclear weapons should include and debate whether such a treaty would actually speed up the disarmament process. Issues often have a theme that shapes the content. Recent themes include "The wages of climate inaction: Ever-rising seas," "Resilience and the climate threat," and "How dangerous is hybrid war?" The Bulletin provides refereed articles about nuclear weapons, global security issues, and threats to humanity that are written in an accessible manner for the general public, policy makers, scientists, scholars, and journalists.

- 3889. Conflict Management and Peace Science. Formerly (until 1980): Journal of Peace Science. [ISSN: 0738-8942] 1973. 6x/yr. USD 836 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Caroline Hartzell. Sage Publications Ltd., 1 Oliver's Yard, 55 City Rd, London, EC1Y 1SP, United Kingdom; market@sagepub.com; https://www.sagepub.com/. Illus., adv. Sample. Refereed. Vol. ends: No. 2. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A22, E01, EconLit, IBSS, P61. Bk. rev.: 1, 1,200 words. Aud.: Ac.

Conflict Management and Peace Science is a peer-reviewed journal published in association with the Peace Science Society (International) at Pennsylvania State University. It contains scientific papers on topics such as international conflict, arms races, the effect of international trade on political interactions, foreign policy decision making, international mediation, and game theoretic approaches to conflict and cooperation. A current issue includes articles such as "Anger, legacies of violence, and group conflict: An experiment in post-riot Acre, Israel" and "Economic sanctions and the dynamics of terrorist campaigns." This journal occasionally has special issues with all the articles focused on a particular topic. Previous special issue topics include "Gendered participation, well-being, and representations in political violence" and "Managing territorial conflict." These articles are primarily written for a scholarly audience and would be most useful in academic and research library collections.

- 3890. Fellowship. [ISSN: 0014-9810] 1918. q. USD 40 in North America; USD 75 elsewhere. Ed(s): Ethan Vesely-Flad. Fellowship of Reconciliation, 521 N Broadway, PO Box 271, Nyack, NY 10960; for@forusa.org; http://forusa.org/. Illus., adv. Microform: PQC. Indexed: A22. Bk. rev.: 6, 350 words. Aud.: Hs, Ga, Ac.

Fellowship is the oldest continuously published multi-faith, multi-cultural peace journal in the United States. Published quarterly by the Fellowship of Reconciliation since 1935, it follows its predecessor, The World Tomorrow, which began in 1918. Fellowship publishes analytical insights, spiritual visions, and personal journeys to aid people of all faiths commit themselves to a nonviolent world of justice, peace, and freedom. A recent issue features articles such as "This is an Uprising: How Nonviolent Revolt is Shaping the Twenty-First Century" and "Christianity is Not the Enemy." In addition to articles on both current and historical events, Fellowship also provides interviews, poems, and news briefs to round out its thoughtful approach to encourage conflict resolution through peaceful efforts by all individuals. This publication would be useful in both public and academic libraries.

- 3891. Global Change, Peace & Security (Print). Former titles (until 2003): Pacifica Review: Peace, Security & Global Change (Print); (until 1994): Interdisciplinary Peace Research (Print). [ISSN: 1478-1158] 1989. 3x/yr. GBP 653 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Aran Martin. Routledge, 4 Park Sq, Milton Park, Abingdon, OX14 4RN, United Kingdom; subscriptions@tandf.co.uk; http://www.tandfonline.com. Index, adv. Sample. Refereed. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A22, CJPI, E01, IBSS, P61, SSA. Bk. rev.: Number and length vary. Aud.: Ac.

This international, double-blind, peer-reviewed journal addresses complex practical and theoretical questions related to rapid globalization and its consequences. Taking a multidisciplinary and multifaceted approach, this scholarly journal strives to analyze geopolitics, human security, violence and insecurity, peacekeeping and peacebuilding, as well as ethno-nationalism, environmental degradation, and explore issues related to the contradictions of an increasingly integrated world that is at the same time becoming more fragmented. Articles from recent issues include "Obstacles to understanding the emergence and significance of the treaty on the prohibition of nuclear weapons," "When conquest would have paid: domestic mobilization and political constraints in the Thai-Cambodian border conflict 2008-2011," and "The Ankara consensus: the significance of Turkey's engagement in sub-Saharan Africa." This journal is a good resource for academic libraries and research centers.

- 3892. International Journal on World Peace. [ISSN: 0742-3640] 1984. q. USD 40 (Individuals, USD 30). Professors World Peace Academy, 3600 Labore Rd, Site 1, Saint Paul, MN 55001; http://www.pwpa.org. Illus., index. Sample. Refereed. Vol. ends: Dec. Microform: PQC. Indexed: A01, A22, BRI, C42, P61, SSA. Bk. rev.: 6, 150-1,100 words. Aud.: Ga, Ac.

International Journal on World Peace is an academic journal that has multidisciplinary articles that focus on all aspects of peace. This journal was founded by scholars gathered in Virginia for a Professors World Peace Academy Conference in 1983 and began its quarterly publication with the September 1984 issue. Its editorial board consists of members from 17 countries such as France, Sri Lanka, Russia, Kenya, New Zealand, the United States, and the Czech Republic. Recent articles include "Moving from reactive to proactive Islam," "Just war theory: North Korea and the United States," and "Religion, NGOs, and the United Nations: visible and invisible actors in power." In addition to refereed articles written by international scholars with diverse backgrounds and specialties, this journal also includes a news section and book reviews. While scholarly in nature, the content would appeal to patrons at both academic and public libraries.

- 3893. International Peacekeeping. [ISSN: 1353-3312] 1994. 5x/yr. GBP 700 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Philip Cunliffe. Taylor & Francis, 2, 3 & 4 Park Sq, Milton Park, Abingdon, OX14 4RN, United Kingdom; subscriptions@tandf.co.uk; https://www.tandfonline.com. Illus., adv. Sample. Refereed. Vol. ends: Winter. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, E01, IBSS, P61. Bk. rev.: 4-6. Aud.: Ac.

Founded in 1994, International Peacekeeping was the first scholarly journal to focus on examining peacekeeping activities following the end of the Cold War. This international peer-reviewed journal examines the theory, practice, outcomes, and consequences of peacekeeping operations throughout the world. With an expansive scope, this journal provides analysis and debates regarding peacebuilding and monitoring activities, humanitarian intervention, preventative deployments, sanctions, international policing, and the complex relationships between peacekeepers, civilians, NGOs, rival factions, and state authorities. Articles from a recent issue include "Social Capital Made Explicit: The Role of Norms, Networks, and Trust in Reintegrating Ex-combatants and Peacebuilding in Liberia," "The Spatial Concentration of Peacekeeping Personnel and Public Health During Intrastate Conflicts," and "Information Processing Challenges in Peacekeeping Operations: A Case Study on Peacekeeping Information Collection Efforts in Mali." In addition to scholarly articles, this journal also includes book reviews. This journal is a valuable resource for scholars at academic research institutions who study international relations, peace and conflict, and security and strategic studies.

3894. International Security. [ISSN: 0162-2889] 1976. q. USD 338 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Steven E Miller, Owen R Cote. MIT Press, One Rogers St, Cambridge, MA 02142-1209; journals-cs@mit.edu; <http://mitpress.mit.edu/>. Illus., adv. Refereed. Indexed: A01, A22, BAS, BRI, CJPI, E01, IBSS, P61. Aud.: Ac.

International Security has been a peer-reviewed journal with a focus on international security and peacekeeping activities since 1978. Edited at Harvard University's Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, it provides well-researched analysis of current, theoretical, and historical security issues. Articles provide coherent and timely analysis on topics such as the causes and prevention of war; U.S.-China relations; ethnic conflict and internal war; terrorism and insurgency; Asian, European, and regional security; U.S. foreign and defense policy; nuclear proliferation; international relations theory; diplomatic and military history; and cybersecurity. Articles from the most recent issue include "Do U.S. Drone Strikes Cause Blowback? Evidence from Pakistan and Beyond" and "U.S.-China Rivalry in Southeast Asia: Power Shift or Competitive Coexistence?" In addition to research articles, a "Correspondence" section allows international relations scholars to share their thoughts and expert opinions with recent "Correspondence" articles on "Arms, Alliances, and Patron-Client Relationships" and "Debating Drone Proliferation." This journal is vital for academic libraries and research centers that focus on international studies and peace.

3895. The Journal of Conflict Resolution. Formerly (until 1957): Conflict Resolution. [ISSN: 0022-0027] 1957. 10x/yr. USD 2242 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Paul Huth. Sage Publications, Inc., 2455 Teller Rd, Thousand Oaks, CA 91320; info@sagepub.com; <http://www.sagepub.com>. Illus., index, adv. Refereed. Vol. ends: Dec. Microform: PQC. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, B01, BAS, BRI, E01, ERIC, EconLit, IBSS, P61, SSA. Aud.: Ac.

This scholarly, interdisciplinary journal focuses primarily on international conflict, while also exploring intergroup conflict and conflict between nations, to help advance the comprehension of issues related to war and peace. Articles frequently come from such disciplines as political science, law, economics, sociology, international relations, history, psychology, anthropology, and methodology to analyze the causes, prevention, and solution of international, domestic, and interpersonal conflicts. This journal is the official publication for the Peace Science Society (International) and has an editorial board made up of scholars from academic institutions around the world. Each journal consists of 6 to 10 articles that focus on solid measurable facts and lucid arguments to provide scholars and researchers with the latest ideas, approaches, and processes in conflict resolution. In a recent issue, articles included "Why Do People Join Backlash Protests? Lessons from Turkey," "The Determinants of Religious Radicalization: Evidence from Kenya," "Distributive Outcomes in Contested Maritime Areas: The Role of Inside Options in Settling Competing Claims," and "Identities in between Political Conflict and Ethnonational Identities in Multicultural States." In addition to research articles, there is a "Data Set Feature" that provides a review for a new, relevant dataset that would be useful to researchers interested in conflict studies. These reviews highlight the dataset's major features, describe patterns and new trends that can be uncovered, as well as explain the utility for the data set. A recent "Data Set Feature" was "Disputes over the Divine: Introducing the Religion and Armed Conflict (RELAC) Data, 1975 to 2015." This journal is an exceptional addition to academic libraries that have a collection focus on peace studies.

3896. Journal of Peace Education. [ISSN: 1740-0201] 2004. 3x/yr. GBP 411 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Jeannie Lum. Routledge, 4 Park Sq, Milton Park, Abingdon, OX14 4RN, United Kingdom; subscriptions@tandf.co.uk; <http://www.tandfonline.com>. Adv. Sample. Refereed. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, E01, ERIC. Bk. rev.: Number and length vary. Aud.: Ga, Ac.

The Journal of Peace Education is a peer-reviewed, multidisciplinary and intercultural journal sponsored by the Peace Education Commission of the International Peace Research Association. This journal aims to promote discourse related to all aspects of peace education, including theory, curriculum, and pedagogy. Topics published in this journal include education regarding disarmament, environmental care, cultural diversity, conflict resolution, ecological sustainability, and educational social movements. Articles in a recent issue include "Con-/divergences between postcolonial and critical peace education: towards pedagogies of decolonization in peace education"; "Shining light into dark shadows of violence and learned helplessness: peace education in South Korean schools"; "Peace education, militarism and neo-liberalism: conceptual reflections with empirical findings from the UK"; and "Cross-cultural conflicts within sports teams." In addition to original articles, this publication also includes book reviews. This journal is a useful resource in peace and conflict studies academic and research libraries.

3897. Journal of Peace Research. [ISSN: 0022-3433] 1964. q. USD 2255 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Gudrun Ostby. Sage Publications Ltd., 1 Oliver's Yard, 55 City Rd, London, EC1Y 1SP, United Kingdom; market@sagepub.com; <https://www.sagepub.com/>. Illus., index, adv. Sample. Refereed. Vol. ends: Nov. Microform: PQC. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, AmHI, BRI, CBRI, E01, EconLit, IBSS, P61, SSA. Bk. rev.: 15-20, 150-450 words. Aud.: Ga, Ac.

This quarterly, interdisciplinary and international journal is peer-reviewed and published by the International Peace Research Association. This publication is a member of the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) and edited at the Peace Research Institute OSLO (PRIO) by an international editorial committee. First published in 1964 and with authors from more than 50 countries, the Journal of Peace Research primarily focuses on the causes of violence and conflict resolution from a global perspective. Recent articles include "Which groups fight? Customary institutions and communal conflicts in Africa"; "The build-up of coercive capacities: Arms imports and the outbreak of violent intrastate conflicts"; "Backdoor peacekeeping: Does participation in UN peacekeeping reduce coups at home?"; and "Refugees, xenophobia, and domestic conflict: Evidence from a survey experiment in Turkey." In addition to the original articles, this journal also includes a "Special Data Feature" section in which scholars review new data sets, as well as data sets that have been updated. Two reviews from the most recent issue consulted are "Organized violence, 1989-2017" and "Days of rage: Introducing the NAVCO 3.0 dataset." The timely articles in this journal provide peace researchers with the latest developments in the field of peace studies and is a useful resource for academic libraries and research centers.

3898. Peace & Change: a journal of peace research. [ISSN: 0149-0508] 1972. q. GBP 476. Ed(s): Heather Fryer. Wiley-Blackwell Publishing, Inc., 350 Main St, Malden, MA 02148; <http://onlinelibrary.wiley.com>. Illus., index, adv. Sample. Refereed. Vol. ends: Oct. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, BRI, E01, P61. Bk. rev.: 3-4, essay length. Aud.: Ga, Ac.

This peer-reviewed, international and interdisciplinary-focused journal is published on behalf of the Peace History Society and the Peace and Justice Association. Articles in this journal aim to connect peace research, education, and activism and focus on a wide variety of peace-related topics such as peace movements and activism, conflict resolution, nonviolence, internationalism, race and gender issues, cross-cultural studies, economic development, the legacy of imperialism, and the post-Cold War upheaval. Recent articles include "The End of the Armed Conflict in Colombia: A Multiple Causal Factor Explanation," "New Rebels in Postconflict Settings: The Principal-Agent Dilemma of Peacebuilding," and "Effective Mediative Diplomacy and Its Seven Virtues: The Case of the European Union." Following the original research articles are five to six book reviews and a notes section that includes biographical information for the authors. This journal would be useful in an academic library or peace research center.

3899. Peace and Conflict: journal of peace psychology. [ISSN: 1078-1919] 1995. q. USD 983 (Individuals, USD 151; Members, USD 82). Ed(s): Fathali M Moghaddam. American Psychological Association, 750 First St, NE, Washington, DC 20002; journals@apa.org; <http://www.apa.org>. Illus., index, adv. Sample. Refereed. Circ: 430. Vol. ends: Dec. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, E01, IBSS, P61, SSA. Bk. rev.: 4, 500-600 words. Aud.: Ac.

Peace and Conflict: Journal of Peace Psychology publishes empirical, theoretical, clinical, and historical scholarly articles on topics related to peace, conflict, and their interaction at all levels, such as in a community, nationally, and internationally. This journal is published by the American Psychological Association's Division of Peace Psychology and encourages the submission of articles from psychologists and scholars in related disciplines that would help support the ideals of the Division of Peace Psychology while advancing psychological knowledge related to peacebuilding. Articles from the most recent issue include "Trauma as a collective disease and root cause of protracted social conflict," "Nationhood as a social representation: Making sense of the Kurdish opening in Turkey," "Still not one people: Implicit ethnic perception of Tutsis in Rwanda," and "The Israeli-Palestinian and the Russian-Ukrainian conflict: Perception and conflict-resolution strategies." Thematic special issues on timely topics are occasionally published, with the last special issue being "Social Movements and Political and Social Transformation." In addition to the research-oriented original articles, book reviews are also included in this publication. This journal would be a useful addition to peace research centers and academic libraries.

- 3900. Peace Magazine. Formerly (until 1985): Peace Calendar. [ISSN: 0826-9521] 1983. q. CAD 18.90 domestic; CAD 23 United States; CAD 30 elsewhere. Ed(s): Metta Spencer. Canadian Disarmament Information Service (CANDIS), PO Box 248, Toronto, ON M5S 2S7, Canada; <http://candis-peace.org/>. Illus., index, adv. Sample. Vol. ends: Nov/Dec. Microform: PQC. Indexed: A01, BRI, C37. Bk. rev.: 3-4, 250-600 words. Aud.: Hs, Ga, Ac.

Peace Magazine is published by the Canadian Disarmament Information Service, a group committed to educating the public on all aspects of peace. Published quarterly, this magazine consists of articles, news stories, interviews, reviews of films and books, and letters. Their online site also includes a weekly video stream from the magazine's editor called "Talk about saving the world." The magazine's focus includes peace, disarmament, human rights abuses, weapons of mass destruction, conflict resolution, and political or military affairs. Authors include scholars, journalists, and activists. Articles are written in an approachable manner and can be easily understood by laypersons. Recent articles include "Cyberpeacekeeping: The Challenge," "Nuclear Disarmament: Universalizing the Treaty," and "Your Dharma is to Make the World Better: A Conversation with Larry Brilliant." This magazine is available both online and in print, but full content is not always available online until after the publication year has ended. This is a good magazine for high school libraries, as well as public and academic libraries.

- 3901. Peace Research: the Canadian journal of peace and conflict studies. [ISSN: 0008-4697] 1969. s-a. CAD 105 (Individuals, CAD 65). Ed(s): Anna Snyder, Neil Funk-Unrau. Menno Simons College, 210-102 Portage Ave, Winnipeg, MB R3C 0G2, Canada; <http://www.brandonu.ca/>. Illus., index. Sample. Refereed. Vol. ends: Nov. Microform: PQC. Indexed: A01, A22, BRI, C37, MLA-IB. Bk. rev.: 1-2, 500-1,000 words. Aud.: Ga, Ac.

Continuously published since 1969, Peace Research: the Canadian Journal of Peace and Conflict Studies is Canada's oldest peace-related scholarly journal. Published twice a year, this journal focuses on issues of conflict, violence, disarmament, poverty, just peace, and human well-being, with an emphasis toward encouraging peaceful methods for conflict resolution. Articles from the most recent issue include "The Legacy of Colonialism Among Indigenous Peoples: Destructive Outcomes, Healing and Reconciliatory Potentials," "'Deviously Ingenious': British Colonialism in Jamaica," and "The Three Rs: Resistance, Resilience, and Reconciliation in Canada and Ireland." This publication is a valuable addition to peace research centers and academic libraries.

- 3902. Peace Review: a journal of social justice. [ISSN: 1040-2659] 1989. q. GBP 727 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Robert Elias. Routledge, 4 Park Sq, Milton Park, Abingdon, OX14 4RN, United Kingdom; subscriptions@tandf.co.uk; <http://www.tandfonline.com>. Illus., adv. Sample. Refereed. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, E01, MLA-IB, P61, SSA. Bk. rev.: 2-3, 1,000-1,500 words. Aud.: Ga, Ac.

This quarterly journal is a multidisciplinary, international publication that focuses on current issues that affect the pursuit of a peaceful world. Peace Review explores peace in a broad sense to include aspects related to human rights, development, ecology, culture, and conflict resolution. Issues tend to revolve around a central theme, such as teaching peace education, though articles outside of this topic may also be published in the same issue. Articles in the most recent issue focused on capitalism, with an emphasis on disaster capitalism, with articles including "Violence and Disaster Capitalism in Post-Haiyan Philippines," "Living with Disaster Capitalism after Fukushima," and "Making Money from Misery." This publication also includes book reviews and a recommended films section. This journal is a good addition to collections in peace research centers and academic libraries.

- 3903. Security Dialogue. Formerly (until 1992): Bulletin of Peace Proposals. [ISSN: 0967-0106] 1970. bi-m. USD 1781 (print & online eds.). Ed(s): Mark B Salter. Sage Publications Ltd., 1 Oliver's Yard, 55 City Rd, London, EC1Y 1SP, United Kingdom; market@sagepub.com; <https://www.sagepub.com/>. Illus., index, adv. Sample. Refereed. Microform: PQC. Reprint: PSC. Indexed: A01, A22, BAS, E01, IBSS, P61. Aud.: Ac.

This bi-monthly, peer-reviewed international journal focuses on global peace and security. Articles that present provocative new theories and insights based on empirical findings on topics like new and traditional security issues, such as globalization, nationalism, ethnic conflict and civil war, information technology, biological and chemical warfare, resource conflicts, pandemics, global terrorism, non-state actors and environmental and human security are encouraged in this publication. Multidisciplinary in its scope, this journal publishes articles by scholars from disciplines such as international studies, gender studies, political sociology, political economy, geography, cultural studies, political theory, anthropology, development studies, postcolonial studies, and peace and conflict studies. Recent articles include "Resistance beyond sovereign politics: Petty sovereigns' disappearance into the world of fiction in post-Fukushima Japan," "Crowd surveillance: The (in)securitization of the urban body," and "From protection to coordinated preparedness: A genealogy of critical infrastructure in Canada." This is a leading journal for scholars interested in security studies and would be a valuable addition to academic libraries and research centers.

■ PETS

Associations

See also Animal Welfare; Birds; Horses; Sports; and Veterinary Science sections.

Camille McCutcheon, Assistant Dean of the Library, Coordinator of Collection Management, University of South Carolina Upstate, 800 University Way, Spartanburg, SC 29303; CMcCutcheon@uscupstate.edu

Introduction

Articles concerning health, wellness, nutrition, care, welfare, behavior, communication, grooming, training, advocacy and rescue, and the human-animal bond, as well as heartwarming stories of actual animals, are commonly featured in many of the magazines in this section.

Most pet magazines, such as The Bark, Catster Magazine, Reptiles, and Tropical Fish Hobbyist, focus exclusively on either dogs, cats, reptiles, or fish. Pets Magazine, however, contains articles on both cats and dogs.

During the past several years, there has been an increase in the number of titles that publish articles on natural care, nutrition, and holistic medicine. The focus of Animal Wellness Magazine and The Whole Dog Journal is on natural health care. Other publications provide medical information for pet owners. The Cummings School of Veterinary Medicine at Tufts University publishes Catnip and Your Dog, and the Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine publishes CatWatch and DogWatch, which are newsletters that provide medical, health, and behavioral information on cats and dogs.