

- Political Science 800: Proseminar: Political Theory and Research Methods (Fall). I discussed relevant library resources for students working on their political science dissertations, with an emphasis on available data resources. During the session, I had the students work on an activity using the techniques and resources I discussed to help them start working on their specific research topics.

Goals

- Spend one-third of my collections budget by January 1, 2023.
 - I spent down my EURMO and POLMO funds at this level. Appropriate resources for PKGMO are published sporadically since it is such a specialized field so spending at a steady rate is more of a challenge.
- Update all libguides and instruction material with Folio-specific links and information.
 - I updated my libguides with links to Folio. Additionally, I edited and updated resources to keep these guides useful and relevant.
- In my role as chair of GODORT Publications, work with the chair of GODORT's Notable Documents Committee to increase awareness and submissions for consideration.
 - I worked with the Notable Documents chair to develop a promotion strategy, which included hosting a webinar about Notable Documents. There were three times as many submissions this year compared to the previous year.
- Peer review at least one article per issue for the journal DttP.
 - I have been volunteering to review two to three articles per issue.

Projects in progress

- Suzi Teghtmeyer and I are working on a grant application through the Library of Michigan's Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) Improving Access to Information program to digitize School Garden Army leaflets that are currently only accessible on platforms like Proquest Congressional and on CIS Executive Branch microfiche. If funded, we will digitize the leaflets from fiche borrowed from the University of Michigan and make the leaflet scans freely available online. These scans will also be ingested into the Digital Public Library of America (DPLA). I have attended two mandatory webinars from the Library of Michigan about the LSTA grant process and have also met with staff at the Library of Michigan and
